Shibori Felt

What is 'Shibori'? 'Shibori' is a Japanese word that means to tie, twist and/or bind. Artists use this method to create patterns/textures by using resistances and then over-dyeing (often called tie-dyeing).

This workshop explores the Shibori method using the natural shrinking properties of felt to create interesting patterns and three-dimensional textural effects. This felt can then be used to create jewellery, vessels or as an embellishment on hats/bags, etc., and incorporated into larger artworks.

The workshop also includes using the 'Nuno' felting method, which is the lamination of fabric and wool to create light draping felted material.

Although this workshop includes advanced techniques, it is still suitable for anyone with some experience in felting.
